

Grason-Stadler (GSI) has launched a new online education program called, GSI ADVANCE. Featured on GSI's corporate website (grason-stadler.com/education), GSI ADVANCE offers educational opportunities for audiologists that cover a wide range of content and learning mediums centered around core audiologic topics including the latest technology.

GSI ADVANCE content is designed to suit all audiologists' needs. The program is categorized into nine areas of focus to provide the audiologist a clear, concise, and logical user experience. The areas of focus include live and recorded webinars, quick facts, reviews, ask the experts, training videos, downloadable educational content and much more. In addition, there are several ways in which audiologists can receive CEU credits.

INTRODUCTORY

INTERMEDIATE

ADVANCED

All ADVANCE learning opportunities can be categorized into one of three levels of learning: Introductory, Intermediate, and Advanced. One of the three icons placed above will be displayed on each resource to quickly identify the direct complexity of the content.

GSI will continue to release new and engaging content on a regular basis. To get connected to the program and receive the latest from GSI ADVANCE, click here.